MESSAGE FROM DIRECTOR, YOUTH AFFAIRS

“Young people naturally seek the company of their peers with whom they often establish important and enduring social relationships. The development of such relationships in the context of organised and structured groups engaged in wholesome activity has long been recognised as one of the most powerful defenses against anti-social behaviour.”

Source: Directory of Youth & Community Organisations Vol. 2

The Division has set itself the daunting task of reversing the apparent trend of dissolution and declining numbers and membership of youth and community groups. These entities face innumerable challenges ranging from financial concerns to lack of community/organisational support to inadequate facilities. It is therefore imperative that the Division and other agencies lend the necessary assistance and guidance to ensure the sustainability and longevity of these organisations.

It is hoped that this Directory will be a useful tool for young people as they interact with their peers; for community-based and non-governmental organisations and government agencies who provide services for or work with young people.

Richard Carter
Director, Youth Affairs

FOREWORD

For the Division of Youth Affairs and the Community Development Department, the community organisation has been an important tool in the development and growth of communities. Programmes, policies and activities are carefully formulated to facilitate:

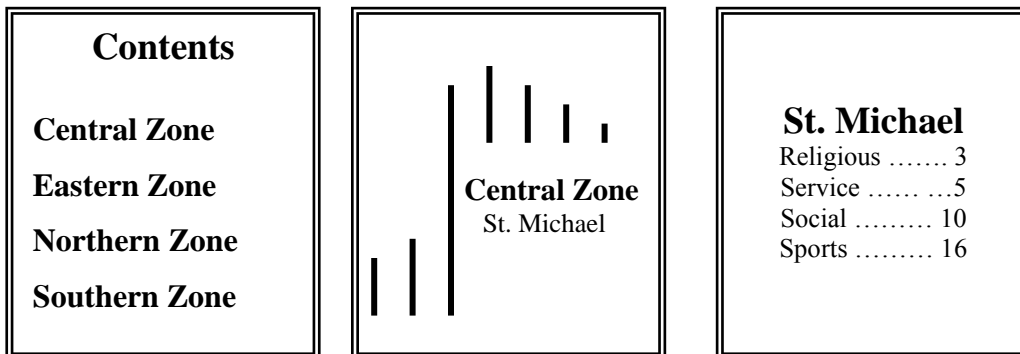

- The education/training of organisational members
- Organisational capacity-building
- Organisation-led community development
- Individual and community pride
- Personal development of individuals
- Community unity
- The establishment & continued survival of organisations
- The establishment of inter- and intra-organisational networks

ORGANISATION OF THE DIRECTORY

The Department

The Youth Affairs Department was created in 1995 to facilitate government’s commitment to providing opportunities of development for Barbadian youth. Using three programming arms – the Barbados Youth Service, the Youth Development Programme and the Youth Entrepreneurship Scheme – the Division seeks to: -

- 1) Harness and channel the energies of youth into the process of nation-building
- 2) Promote a spirit of entrepreneurship among young people
- 3) Build harmonious relations between Barbadian citizens and develop a more caring society in the process
- 4) Create an environment which will promote confidence in our culture, thus equipping youth to deal more effectively with negative influences
- 5) Redirect the lives of young people who manifest negative attitudes and dysfunctional social, emotional and behavioural trends.

The Department operates through three programming channels: -

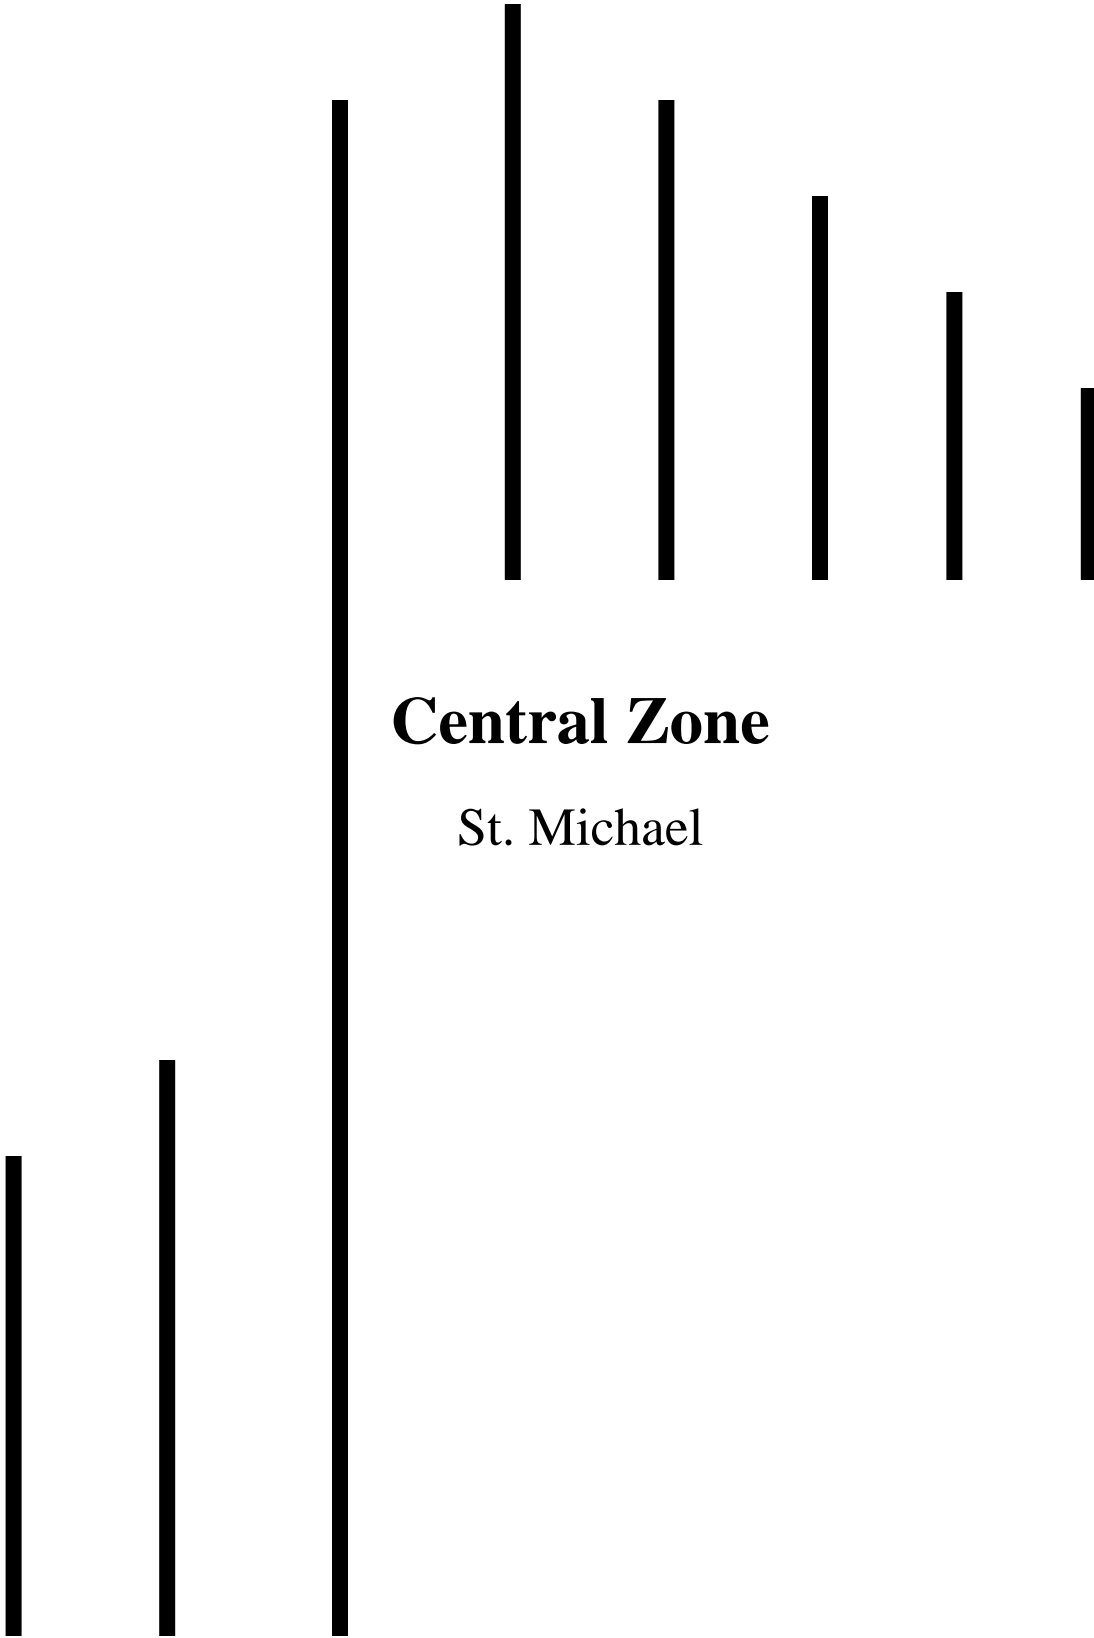

The Barbados Youth Service (BYS)

The Youth Development Programme (YDP)

The Youth Entrepreneurship Scheme (YES)

Directory of Youth & Community Organisations
